

16 • THE TAMPA TRIBUNE • WEDNESDAY, MARCH 31, 2010 • 170¢/copy

[nation+world] INSIDE METRICS

Goal is to shield pope from suit

U.S. abortion cases
Diabetes Vatican

The Vatican is trying to shield Pope Benedict XVI from a lawsuit in Kentucky by arguing that the pope's public appearance in the United States was not a commercial activity. The Vatican's lawyers are arguing that the pope's appearance in the United States was not a commercial activity, and therefore, the pope is not liable for the lawsuit. The lawsuit was filed by a woman who claims that she was sexually abused by the pope when he was a priest in the United States. The woman is seeking damages for her injuries. The Vatican's lawyers are arguing that the pope's appearance in the United States was not a commercial activity, and therefore, the pope is not liable for the lawsuit. The Vatican's lawyers are arguing that the pope's appearance in the United States was not a commercial activity, and therefore, the pope is not liable for the lawsuit.

Key to the lawsuit

McMurry is eager to find out what the Vatican and the pope's lawyers are doing about the lawsuit. McMurry is eager to find out what the Vatican and the pope's lawyers are doing about the lawsuit. McMurry is eager to find out what the Vatican and the pope's lawyers are doing about the lawsuit.

Tampa Tribune Vatican

Clipped By:

bill9917
Sat, Jan 4, 2020